Legal Project Management Training 2024

Leading to the certification of Legal Project Practitioner (LPP) or Legal Project Associate (LPA)

Course Leader: Antony Smith

L.L.B M.Sc. M.Phil. L.P.P, Solicitor (non-practising).

INTRODUCTION

This is a three-day course, after which students may apply to become Legal Project Practitioners (LPPs), certified by the International Institute of Legal Project Management (IILPM).

Students attending the first two days only are eligible to become certified as Legal Project Associates (LPAs) by the IILPM.

Research shows that practising skills is the most effective way to learn and apply new knowledge. Hence during the course students are taken through facilitated workshops and exercises.

Students particularly enjoy the workshops and exercises, not least because they provide a great opportunity for interacting with, and learning from, other students who are often engaged in different roles in the legal services industry.

The course is based on the IILPM's 4-Phase LPM Framework. This Framework begins by focusing on essential project management ideas and techniques, but then covers much more. The result is a comprehensive approach to legal service delivery.

4-PHASE LPM FRAMEWORK

Course Deliverables

1. Written notes covering all topics referred to in each module.
2. IILPM approved Templates for executing key tasks found in legal project management.
3. Practical workshops and exercises to help students understand key concepts and develop their legal project management skills.

I am a solicitor by training with post-graduate level qualifications in law, project management and computing.

I am also:

- A Legal Project Practitioner (LPP) and Fellow of the International Institute of Legal Project Management (FIILPM).
- A full member of the Association for Project Management (APM), and the Project Management Institute (PMI).
- Prince II qualified (Practitioner level).

I have enjoyed project-based roles at Pinsent Masons, The School of Law Kings College London, Berrymans Lace Mawer and Axxia / LexisNexis, where I spent just over 10 years in the role of Strategic Project Manager.

I started my commercial career during the first wave of legal Artificial Intelligence as a legal expert system developer. I have since successfully managed project support for complex international commercial disputes, using computers in courtrooms and implementing practice management and workflow systems in a wide range of law firms. I have been called a 'completion expert' and during my career I have implemented many legal support projects which have been innovative and strategically important to the sponsoring organisation.

I now enjoy devising and delivering legal project management and legal process improvement training courses. Most people attending my courses do so because their colleagues have recommended them, and this is something of which I am proud. I stay connected with all my course graduates, and over the years some have become friends and colleagues.
